

John Olajide

PRESIDENT AND CEO, AXCESS

As President and CEO of Axxess, John Olajide leads the strategic vision and direction of the company. Prior to founding Axxess in 2007, he was an independent consultant for home health agencies. In this role, Olajide gained valuable experience in all aspects of their operations and compliance with state and federal regulations. In the process, he identified an unmet need for a user-friendly, web-based home health software solution to improve business management. This triggered the entrance into the home health software business for Axxess.

Olajide is passionate about improving the quality of healthcare services delivered to patients in their homes by empowering home health agencies with state-of-the-art technology.

He has been named in the Dallas Business Journal's 2014 list of 'Who's Who in Healthcare,' the same year that Axxess received the 'Excellence in Healthcare' award from the distinguished Dallas business magazine, D CEO.

Olajide serves on the Board of Directors of the Dallas Regional Chamber of Commerce and is the current Chair of the Innovation and Capital Committee of the Chamber. He also spent several years serving on the education and Medicare/Medicaid committees of the Texas Association for Home Care & Hospice.

Olajide holds a Bachelor of Science in Engineering from the University of Texas at Dallas.